Help your community college students develop global citizenship skills, and prepare them for their future careers with educational travel.

Why travel?

In an increasingly globalized world, it's crucial that students experience and understand the world's many diverse cultures. Through educational travel, your community college students can contextualize academic subjects and get a firsthand perspective on international issues, building essential problem solving skills while adapting to a new environment. With our previous community college tours, we've witnessed life-changing experiences from Cuba to Germany to Qatar. So, take your lessons out of the classroom and into the world. Enrich your students and help them to become informed global citizens on an educational tour abroad.

Students who travel abroad:

- › Attain higher degrees
- › Graduate with higher college GPAs
- › Have higher salaries
- › Travel more often
- › Are more attractive job candidates
- › Are 4x more likely to travel on overseas business

“After my European trip with Explorica I feel like a changed person. The biggest thing I have learned from this trip is that the world really doesn't just revolve around the United States. There is so much more to see out there. Each country was different in its own way, whether it was a language barrier, cultural difference or scenery change. It was definitely the best investment of my life and helped me make memories that will last a lifetime.”

—James, community college student

"I've traveled with Explorica to Western Europe and Cuba, and I'm already planning future trips to Asia, Puerto Rico, Spain and Cuba again. I love Explorica's great prices, Tour Directors, and hotels, but the best part is the personal service—They follow up and get back to my students before, during and after the trip. Without their fantastic customer service, I wouldn't be able to plan and organize these trips."
